Margaret Brunson is enthusiastic about her work in making strong leaders. More than a simple role, it is very clearly a spiritual undertaking for Margaret. She intuitively drew out my strengths and didn't harp on the bad behaviors that keep me from being my best Self, but simply encouraged me to take on new ones! Paired with her insights about leadership in the Black community specifically, she was able to eliminate some of the "mental chatter" that often obscures my true potential. Her attention to identity, relationships, dreams and aspirations is critical in this work and I'm so appreciative for my time with her!
